Laurie's Corner

July was an unusually wet and cooler month, it would be nice if August was milder as well.

The Romans originally called August "Sextilis" since it was the sixth month of the calendar year. "Sextilis" was derived from the Latin word sextus meaning sixth. Julius Caesar adopted his nephew, Gaius Julius Caesar Octavianus and made him his heir. The Senate gave this ruler the title of Augustus meaning "revered" or "reverend" and named this month after him. He took one day from February and added to August so that this month would have 31 days, the same as July that honored his uncle Julius Caesar.

There are not any National Holidays to celebrate this month, but I am sure we will find lots to do.

Just a reminder to start watching out in the school zones as school will be starting around August 21st.

God Bless,
Laurie
